POWER RANKINGS

Where every manager gets ranked, roasted, and reminded exactly where they stand heading into the 2026 season.

2026 SEASON PREVIEW · 10 MANAGERS RANKED · BY THE LEAGUE OFFICE

Every offseason the debate rages: who's actually good, and who just got lucky? Below, we break down all ten teams in Just Fantasy — from the reigning back-to-back champion to the manager still searching for his first playoff win — using career record, average finish, and postseason résumé to settle it once and for all. Rankings run from one to ten. Arguments in the group chat are, as always, encouraged.

1

LAST SEASON: 1ST PLACE

AARON

Champion of the League

3 YEARS IN LEAGUE	2.0 AVG. FINISH	24-18 RECORD	57% WIN PCT.
----------------------	--------------------	-----------------	-----------------

Trophies: First Place 2025, First Place 2024

As much as it pains me to say it... Aaron is the clear number 1. Back-to-back championships with a chance at a three-peat is impressive and bordering on a dynasty. Aaron is 6-1 in the playoffs with his only loss coming to the juggernaut 2023 Harry and Bijan Law squad. Plain and simple, Aaron knows how to put a squad together. Consistent winning seasons filled with consistent, non-injury-prone players that everyone fears to play every week. But this is all the past. It's a new year, new season, new teams, Drake "Drake Maye" Maye's stupid nickname is hopefully gone, this year is already looking different. As Aaron is entering his third year at Mizzou with a master's degree on the horizon, could Aaron's outside life affect his fantasy team? Will his winning streak continue? He's built a reputation off hitting the waiver wire and fleecing trades, and if that magic continues to work we might be looking at the first Dynasty in Just Fantasy.

2

LAST SEASON: 3RD PLACE

HARRY

Consistent Contender

3 YEARS IN LEAGUE	3.66 AVG. FINISH	23-19 RECORD	54% WIN PCT.
----------------------	---------------------	-----------------	-----------------

Trophies: First Place 2023, Second Place 2022, Third Place 2025

After falling short of reaching the championship by just 5 points last year, Harry's Law Office is looking to find the magic once found in 2023. Averaging right around a third-place finish and boasting a 54% win rate, he has established himself as one of the top finishers in the league year after year. Finishing in second place to Isaiah in 2022, first in 2023, and third in 2025, a podium finish in ¾ seasons is the definition of consistency. Harry has proven that he's not just a one-year wonder, he's one of the safest bets to make a deep playoff run every season, but other than one magical season he has continued to fall short. He can put together a contender... but can he put together the champion? Maybe some illegal trades with his other account Mickey Bronx will be able to help out a little bit.

3

LAST SEASON: LOST IN 1ST ROUND

FARHAN

The Regular Season Machine

3 YEARS IN LEAGUE	4.0 AVG. FINISH	25-17 RECORD	59% WIN PCT.
----------------------	--------------------	-----------------	-----------------

Trophies: Second Place 2024

Despite a disappointing ending to the season last year, falling to Harry and Jeanty Law Offices in the first round by over 30 points, Farhan has turned his fantasy reputation from looking like Mike Glennon to Caleb Williams over the last 3 years. He has posted the best overall record and winning percentage of anyone in the league (59%). He has averaged a top-4 spot since joining and marked a second-place finish in his remarkable 2024 season. There's no doubt that Farhan knows how to win in the regular season, but the playoffs continue to be a struggle, tallying just one playoff win despite appearing in the playoffs the last 3 seasons. He can put a roster together, they can win some games, but can they stay healthy enough to make that final playoff push? History has said no, but that doesn't mean the fantasy gods don't have other plans in store this upcoming season.

4

LAST SEASON: MISSED PLAYOFFS

ISAIAH

The Former Champion Looking for a Comeback

3 YEARS IN LEAGUE	5.33 AVG. FINISH	19-23 RECORD	45% WIN PCT.
----------------------	---------------------	-----------------	-----------------

Trophies: Third Place 2024, First Place 2022

Isaiah drops a little after missing the playoffs last season, but his 2022 championship keeps him firmly in the upper half of the rankings. He also finished third in 2024, proving that his championship season wasn't simply a fluke. The problem is that his 19-23 career record and 45% win rate suggest he's been much less consistent than the teams above him. Still, Isaiah has something that several highly ranked teams don't: he's already proven he can win the whole thing. After missing the playoffs last year, there's plenty of motivation for Isaiah to bounce back and remind the league what he's capable of. With a championship already under his belt, things might be looking up for Isaiah if he can recapture his old form this year.

5

LAST SEASON: LOST IN 2ND ROUND

JOEY

The Dangerous Sleeper

3 YEARS IN LEAGUE	4.33 AVG. FINISH	24-18 RECORD	57% WIN PCT.
----------------------	---------------------	-----------------	-----------------

Trophies: Third Place 2023

Joey had another solid season last year, making the playoffs before ultimately falling to Aaron in the second round. His 24-18 career record and 57% win rate put him among the league's most consistently successful regular-season managers. Joey also owns a 4.33 average finish and a third-place finish in 2023, so he's clearly capable of making a deep run. The biggest knock against him is that he still hasn't broken through and reached a championship game. He's been good enough to contend, but now he needs to take that final step. With another year of experience under his belt, things might be looking up for Joey as he tries to run his way to his first championship.

6

LAST SEASON: 2ND PLACE

TAMBO

The Reigning Runner-Up

3 YEARS IN LEAGUE	5.33 AVG. FINISH	21-21 RECORD	50% WIN PCT.
----------------------	---------------------	-----------------	-----------------

Trophies: Second Place 2025

Tambo comes into 2026 with plenty of confidence after making it all the way to the championship game last season. He knocked out Harry in the second round before running into the Aaron buzzsaw in the championship, ultimately finishing second in the league. That run was an important step forward for a manager who has been hovering around the middle of the standings with a career 21-21 record. His 5.33 average finish isn't spectacular, but last year's playoff run proves that his regular-season numbers don't tell the entire story. Now the challenge is proving that 2025 wasn't just lightning in a bottle. After coming within one game of a championship, things might be looking up for Tambo as he looks to finish the job this year. He will certainly be energized enough with his smoothie he will have to drink courtesy of his last-place finish a couple seasons ago.

7

LAST SEASON: LOST IN 1ST ROUND

JAVY

The Wild Card

2 YEARS IN LEAGUE	5.0 AVG. FINISH	16-12 RECORD	57% WIN PCT.
----------------------	--------------------	-----------------	-----------------

Javy may be ranked seventh, but his numbers suggest he could easily outperform that ranking. Despite only playing two seasons, he's already put together a 16-12 record with a 57% win rate, matching Joey and Aaron in that category. He gave Aaron a good fight in the first round last year but ultimately couldn't pull off the upset against the eventual champion. His biggest issue is simply a lack of résumé — he hasn't finished on the podium yet and has only played two seasons. If Javy can turn his strong regular-season performance into a deep playoff run, he could skyrocket up these rankings. After giving Aaron a scare last year, things might be looking up for Javy if he can take that next step this season.

8

LAST SEASON: MISSED PLAYOFFS

MICKEY

The Former Runner-Up

3 YEARS IN LEAGUE	6.0 AVG. FINISH	19-23 RECORD	45% WIN PCT.
----------------------	--------------------	-----------------	-----------------

Trophies: Second Place 2023

Mickey came in hot his first season in the league, making the championship and nearly spoiling a perfect season from Harry and Bijan Law, but since then Mickey has had very little to show with back-to-back 5-win seasons. He now owns a 19-23 career record and a 45% win rate, making consistency the biggest question surrounding his team. Still, that 2023 runner-up finish is important because it proves Mickey has the ability to compete at the highest level when things break his way. It doesn't have to be a team filled with the biggest names, but it's a squad of consistent, nitty-gritty ones. A 6.00 average finish isn't great, but it's also not a death sentence in a league this competitive. Mickey needs to rediscover the form that carried him to the championship game a few years ago, and he might find himself with a trophy.

9

LAST SEASON: MISSED PLAYOFFS

RYAN

The Long Shot

3 YEARS IN LEAGUE	10.0 AVG. FINISH	17-25 RECORD	40% WIN PCT.
----------------------	---------------------	-----------------	-----------------

Oh boy... where to begin. Back-to-back-to-back seasons finishing in dead last. An overall win percentage of just 40% and an average place finish of 10, which wouldn't be too bad if it was a 20-person league, but it's not. The most positive note I can say is that he has zero playoff losses the last 3 years, but that's only because he has zero playoff appearances. But let's put it this way: every coin flip has not gone his way, his players have gotten injured, trades that initially looked great turned out to be one-sided, and Ryan has been left in the dust by his underperforming team. But if there is one person who is most likely to exceed expectations this year... it's the Breese. He will always be checking the waiver wire, he will always be scouting trades, he will always be watching all the games and have SportsCenter on. Will you? Plus it doesn't hurt to have a little brother you can bully into giving you all his better players for a bag of chips. Ryan will be putting in the work this season, and if you don't, then the weekly matchup against him won't be as easy as you might think. The Breese is coming for you.
